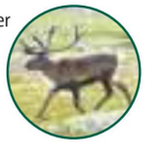
FREAK LIGHTNING STORM KILLS 323 REINDEER IN NORWAY



A freak lightning storm has killed 323 reindeer in a remote mountainous area of Norway, officials said. Dead animals were found lying on top of each other, many with their antlers entangled, after the thunderstorm on the Hardanger plateau in southern Norway. "We've never had anything like this with lightning," Kjartan Knutsen of Norway's nature surveillance agency said, adding there were sometimes isolated cases of sheep or reindeer struck down. Reindeer tend to group together when in danger. It was unclear whether the herd had been killed by a single lightning bolt or several. Hardanger was extremely wet, helping conduct lightning. REUTERS

CALIF. LAWMAKERS PASS RAPE BILL INSPIRED BY STANFORD CASE

2 California lawmakers, responding to outrage over the six-month jail term given to a former Stanford University swimmer after his conviction for sexually assaulting an unconscious woman, passed legislation, closing a loophole that allowed the sentence. The bill now goes to Democratic Gov. Jerry Brown for approval. He has not indicated whether he will sign it into law. The measure was introduced in response to the sentence given to 20-year-old Brock Turner by Santa Clara County Superior Court Judge Aaron Persky, which was condemned as too lenient. Prosecutors had asked that Turner be given six years in prison. He is scheduled to be released on Friday from jail in Northern California. "Sexually assaulting an unconscious or intoxicated victim is a terrible crime and our laws need to reflect that," Democratic Assemblyman Bill Dodd, a co-author of the legislation, said in a written statement. TWITTER TO SHARE AD REVENUE ON VIDEOS BY US INDIVIDUAL USERS

3 Twitter said it would share some of the advertising revenue on videos created by its individual users in the United States as part of an expanded video advertising program. The microblogging service provider's Amplify Publisher Program is currently restricted to large companies such as CBS Corp's CBS News and organizations such as the National Football League and Major League Baseball. A user has to check a box prior to tweeting videos, after which ads will run on the video before it starts. "A portion of the ad revenue is then shared back with creator," Twitter said in a blog post. Twitter will share 70 percent of the revenue with the video creator, technology website Recode reported, citing a source familiar with the matter. REUTERS

Communities battle the stigma of drug addiction to save lives

International Overdose Awareness Day brings public perception into the spotlight.

ALEXIS SACHDEV

alexis.sachdev@metro.us

ISTOCK

For most people and their families battling drug addiction, standing up to the stigma is another hurdle entirely. The shaming stares and discrimination imposed by neighbors, friends, classmates or coworkers, in church or at grocery stores, is tangible. And painful.

From that sense of alienation was born International Overdose Awareness Day. Observed annually on Aug. 31, participants mark the day to mourn their loved ones without shame, and to offer education and stimulate discussion on the issues of addiction, overdose and drug policy.

Events designed to raise awareness are planned today in cities across the nation, from New York to Seattle.

More than 250,000 Americans died of prescription drug overdoses from 2001 to 2014, the last year for which data is available. During that same period, 135,000 people died from illicit overdoses, which includes cocaine and heroin. In both sets, rates of fatal overdose have increased exponentially in recent years, according to the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

Yet as instances of fatal overdose are all too common, terms of discrimination against those battling addiction persist: "junkie," "tweaker," "druggy," "meth head," "wine-o."

"I think some of the stigma from drug use comes from our very outdated understanding of what problematic substance abuse is and why people do it," Laura Thomas of the Drug Policy Alliance said.

New York numbers

- From 2009 to 2013, there was a 41 percent increase statewide in reported drug overdose deaths, which included a 163 percent increase in the number of heroin-related deaths.
- Four of the five neighborhoods with the highest rate of heroin-involved overdose death were in the Bronx: Hunts Point-Mott Haven, Crotona-Tremont, Highbridge Morrisania and Fordham-Bronx Parkway.
- The rate of heroin-involved overdose deaths was highest among white New Yorkers in 2015, and among New Yorkers aged 35 to 54.

(New York City Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, 2016)

"We're taught a series of stereotypes — that it's distant, someone other than us — but also that [drug addiction] is selfish, irresponsible, and there are additional, often racist overtones," Thomas said.

Thomas, deputy state director in California for the New York City-based organization, said the phrase "drug addict" is often associated with the image of an African-American man, though the reality is that in the United States, most adults abuse intoxicants, whether legal or illicit, at one point in their lives.

To combat these stigmas, Thomas said, shifts in the criminal justice system and in public perception need to take place. First, addiction should be treated like a health issue, not a criminal issue, she said. And much like increased acceptance with the LGBT community, there needs to be a change in the "public presentation," through high-profile people discussing their addiction and earnest discussion, she said.

VOCAL-NY, an advocacy organization, is employing harm-reduction services to help change the stigma associated with drug use.

The Brooklyn-based group is hosting overdose prevention trainings Wednesday, including teaching the public how to administer Nalaxone, an overdose antidote. Sessions are from 10 a.m. to noon at City Council Member Stephen Levin's district office on Atlantic Avenue, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at VOCAL-NY's headquarters on Fourth Avenue.

"Overdose deaths have been on the rise in New York City in the last couple of years … more people are using and more people are dying, but it doesn't have to be that way," said VOCAL-NY co-executive director Alyssa Aguilera. "Harm reduction is an ethos that even if you're using drugs, you don't need to die of an overdose. It's about treating people with dignity and respect."

"Drug users are so stigmatized that people think they don't care about their lives, but organizations like ours try to create a safe space so they can get the care they need," Aguilera said. VOCAL-NY provides syringe exchanges and hepatitis C and HIV testing, among other services.

"Stigma makes it so that people are using alone, or using in places there aren't a lot of people around," she added. "If you're homeless or unstably housed, you're forced to use in alleyways or under bridges or on the street. Those conditions can make someone overdose because they're in this unstable place."

Thanks to a law passed in 2013, members of the public can be trained in administering Nalaxone and can hopefully save the life of someone who has overdosed, Aguilera said.

NY medical marijuana providers rejoice in Cuomo's policy changes

Liberal changes, including home delivery, intend to boost NY's struggling medical cannabis market.

Officials at major medical marijuana companies are rejoicing over the dramatic policy changes to New York's medical marijuana program that Gov. Andrew Cuomo announced Tuesday, which aim to improve business for the fledgling nine-month-old industry.

The policy changes focus on improvements to patient access, such as home delivery to patients too ill to travel, and allowing nurses to prescribe the drug, changes which may be implemented as early as the end of September, according to a statement from the Governor's office.

Two weeks ago the Health Department had appealed to the state with 12 suggestions to ease restrictions on the medical marijuana program that was legalized in 2014. The five medical cannabis companies, which operate a total of 17 dispensaries throughout the state, have struggled to secure a customer base and sustainable cash flow since they began opening in January 2016.

"We've always been interested in expanding the program," Alphonso David, Cuomo's chief legal aide, said in an interview with The New York Times. "We just wanted to make sure we had the data to support it."

According to the Health Department, about 675 physicians have been registered, with only about 7,000 patients officially certified. However, not all of those patients are consistent customers, reported The New York Times.

Officials from the five registered medical cannabis providers said they are grateful for the methodical approach to building the industry.

Ari Hoffnung, CEO of Vireo Health, said his group applauds the government and the Department of Health for their commitment to patient access and making meaningful changes, specifically the inclusion of chronic pain as a prescribed condition, and for allowing nurses to certify patients, which will ideally open up the market to new clients.

"Every single person we serve has a life-threatening and debilitating disease," said Hoffnung. "And from an economic perspective, we are dealing with an extraordinarily small market of about 2,000 patients, and we hope that with the proposed changes we will be able to help more people."

Though pleased with the majority of the policy proposals, company executives expressed opposition over the idea to bringing more companies into a market where the five established ones are struggling to gain a foothold.

"We are concerned with the proposals to add five more organizations," Hoffnung told Metro. "At this time the market is not mature. It is very small, so we ought to hit the pause button on that proposal and give the five companies a chance to grow and build a sustainable business."

Nicholas Vita, the CEO of Columbia Care, one of the biggest medical marijuana organizations in the country, said that although the growth of the program has been slow since its inception, he had anticipated at least a two- to three-year lead time to build the program responsibly.

"This is a marathon, not a sprint," said Vita. "We collaborate with the state and together we will find ways to improve the program endeavor."

Upcoming changes

Over the next few weeks and months, the Health Department intends to:

- Provide delivery service for patients who have difficulty reaching dispensaries
  Double the number of companies doing business in the state which is said to be too few to serve New York's 20 million population. (There are currently only five companies running 17 dispensaries in all of New York).
- Expand the number of qualifying conditions to include things such as chronic pain, PTSD and Alzheimer's disease. Under current law residents are only eligible if they have cancer, HIV/AIDS, epilepsy, spinal cord injury, inflammatory bowel disease, neuropathy, and Huntington's disease.
- More brands of the drug will also be considered, although the law will still restrict medical marijuana to non-smoke formats suchh as drops, sprays and pills.
- Ease access at health care facilities associated with educational entities, such as university hospitals, which have shied from the program because of its strict federal oversight.
- Ease the cost of the drug for some with a waiver of the $50 registration fee for those of qualifying economic hardship. Insurance does not currently cover medical marijuana in New York, and the out-of-pocket expenses run from $200 to $1,000.
- Broaden the companies' advertising capabilities
  Improve the use-friendliness of the Medical Marijuana Data Management System which hosts the patient and provider certification and registration process

New York subway cricket prankster arrested

The woman who showered crickets and worms into a busy D train on Aug. 26 has been arrested.

Before her arrest Tuesday, Zaida Pugh, 21, posted a 37-minute video on Facebook tearfully saying that she fears for her life and regrets the fallout of her "performance art."

"There are people that really hate me … probably want me dead. I don't want that. That's not the type of attention I wanted," Pugh, an aspiring actress, said in the video.

A shot of Pugh from the passenger's video PROVIDED

Pugh was apprehended by the NYPD's Brooklyn Warrant Squad Tuesday and was charged with reckless endangerment, obstructing governmental administration, false reporting of an incident and disorderly conduct, the New York Daily News reported.

"I just really had a dream and I wanted it to go far. I wanted to spread messages out there, and I didn't want it to happen like this," she stated in her video.

It is unknown what she was dreaming would happen with her bizarre prank in which she posed as a woman selling crickets and worms. In a video of the incident someone appears to smack the writhing bucket from her hands, flinging the live bugs onto rush-hour riders. One startled rider then pulled the emergency brake, leaving the entire train stranded for more than a half-hour on the Manhattan Bridge as crickets jumped about.

Pugh then acted as though she was a mentally ill, screaming uncontrollably, urinating on herself, and attempting to vomit, video of the incident reveals. When police arrived they took her to a psych ward for evaluation before releasing her.

Two days later Pugh said the bugs were a staged prank to raise awareness of how people treat the homeless. At the time she was not concerned about the backlash, she told Reuters.

"Of course they'll be angry with me, but I guess I'm just doing me. I'm waking people up with my shows, my acts," she said by telephone.

Call for child neglect probe in Weiner sexting scandal

Experts say that a sext that featured Weiner's son should be enough to lead to a child neglect investigation.

CRISTABELLE TUMOLA
@CristabelleT
cristabelle.tumola@metro.us

Anthony Weiner could lose more than just his wife after his latest sexting scandal, some are saying.

News broke Monday that Weiner, who was previously marred by sexting scandals that in 2011 caused him to resign from Congress and two years later to lose momentum in the New York City mayoral primary, was once again sexting.

But this time Weiner, who has been married to Hillary Clinton aide Huma Abedin through each indiscretion, crossed a line — with both his wife and critics.

Abedin finally left her husband, and his latest sexted crotch shot reportedly featured his 4-year-old son sleeping next to him.

Bronx state Sen. and pentecostal minister Ruben Diaz Sr. told the New York Post that he was disgusted by the report, and is calling for an investigation into possible child abuse and neglect.

"The photo and story worry me as a senator, a minister, a parent and a grandfather, because I believe that the disregard for any boundaries of sexual activity with a child present is incredibly inappropriate and could have a harmful impact on the child," he told the Post.

Weiner GETTY IMAGES

"I urge the city of New York's Administration for Children's Services to investigate this case carefully and thoroughly. … I am sure that the Administration for Children's Services will consider how Anthony Weiner's continued perverted activity that we have all seen over the years in his texting or twittering is a harbinger of possible future child abuse or neglect, especially when he does this with his child next to him in his bed," he added.

Anytime adults draw children into their own sexual activity they have crossed the line. It is always inappropriate for an adult to connect any child to their sexual activities, however peripheral."

Hathaway

Tim Hathaway, executive director at Prevent Child Abuse New York, agreed that the behavior could lead to an investigation.

"Anytime adults draw children into their own sexual activity they have crossed the line. It is always inappropriate for an adult to connect any child to their sexual activities, however peripheral," he told the New York Daily News.

A divorce lawyer also told the publication that "ACS has gotten involved with a lot lesser allegations." But law enforcement sources said that there is currently no criminal investigation into the sexting incident because it doesn't meet the requirements of endangering the welfare of a child.

Prospect Park Zoo welcomes new baby tufted deer

Oh deer!

A baby tufted deer who was born earlier this month at Prospect Zoo Park made its public appearance Monday.

The fawn is male and was born to mother Lucy and father Gage on Aug. 2.

According to zoo officials, this is Lucy's seventh fawn. Tufted deer are a small species of Asian deer and gets its name from the thick clump of black hair on the top of its head.

Although this particular species is not endangered, tufted deer populations are dwindling because of hunting and loss of habitat in its native land in areas between China and the northeastern parts of Myanmar.

Woman assaulted by naked man in Brooklyn

Police are looking for a man who they say grabbed a Brooklyn woman from behind and nearly raped her — all while wearing no clothes.

The woman was heading toward her home near East 55th Street and Avenue J in Flatlands just after 11 p.m. Monday when she was attacked, according to authorities. The suspect approached her from behind, grabbed her by the neck, threw her to the ground and forcibly touched her, police said.

The nude suspect fled the scene after the victim was able to free herself, according to police.

Authorities describe the suspect as about 25 to 30 years old with a thin build.

Anyone with information in regards to this incident is asked to call the NYPD's Crime Stoppers Hotline at 1-800-577-TIPS (8477). The public can also submit their tips by logging onto the Crime Stoppers website or by texting their tips to 274637 (CRIMES) then entering TIP577. All calls are strictly confidential.

Cops: Mysterious jogger has no connection to Karina Vetrano murder

NYPD officials said that a man described by Karina Vetrano's father as a person of interest in the slain runner's death has no connection to the investigation.

Vetrano's father Philip, in a radio interview Monday on WABC with Guardian Angels founder Curtis Sliwa, claimed that a man who ran the same Howard Beach jogging route as his murdered daughter could help in her murder investigation.

"I just want to talk with him. I would see him almost every day. Now, he dropped off the face of the earth," Phillip Vetrano reportedly said in the interview.

NYPD Chief of Detectives Robert Boyce said Tuesday that this mystery jogger heard Vetrano's comments and contacted police, according to NBC4. His DNA did not match samples found at the crime scene, Boyce added, and the man said he stopped running because of an injured knee.

Boyce also said Tuesday that DNA collected — from her cellphone and various parts of her body — hadn't matched anyone they've run through their databases — citywide, statewide or nationwide, ABC7 reported.

Karina Vetrano, 30, was found murdered and raped in Spring Creek Park near a jogging path on Aug. 2, just hours after she told her father that she was going for a run.

Currently, there is a $300,000 reward for any information leading to her killer.

According to ABC7, Boyce said police are now looking at suspects who were possibly jailed before 1998 when the nationwide database began, or younger suspects who don't have a rap sheet.

"As you can imagine, that's quite an undertaking," he said.

Kayakers hit by ferry on Hudson River

One of the NYPD boats used in the rescue TWITTER @ JPETERDONALDREDIT

At least six paddlers were hospitalized Tuesday after a group of kayakers collided with a ferry departing Pier 79 in Manhattan, NYPD officials said.

Six people were taken out of the Hudson River near Pier 79 on West 39th Street by the NYPD, FDNY and the U.S. Coast Guard. One victim, an 18-year-old, was taken to Bellevue Hospital with a severe arm injury and blood loss; five others were being treated for injuries including shoulder and back injuries and a head laceration.

"I think both people have a responsibility to stay out of the way of each other," an unidentified NYPD officer said when asked about the rules of the water.

The unidentified NYPD official told reporters nine paddlers and one employee of Manhattan Kayak Company, located on Pier 84, were out for a short paddle. Two of the eight kayaks were hit by a NY Waterway ferry on the north side of Pier 79 at about 5:45 p.m. causing multiple people to fall into the water. Police were on the scene within five minutes, the NYPD said.

The NYPD sent divers to check for anyone who might still be in the water before holding a news conference.

Ex-Gitmo prisoner deported to Uruguay from Venezuela

Jihad Diyab was held for 12 years in Guantanamo without being charged and was released to Uruguay in 2014 in a deal to reduce the number of detainees at the U.S. military prison.

Guantanamo Bay, Cuba GETTY IMAGES

A former Guantanamo Bay prisoner arrived in Uruguay on Tuesday after being deported from Venezuela, where he set off alarm bells for traveling without proper documents and was detained earlier this month, a government official said.

"He arrived early this morning," Susana Muñiz, the director of Uruguayan health services said on local television, adding that he was being taken for a medical check-up.

The Syrian national had not been seen in Montevideo since mid-June and arrived in Caracas by way of Brazil in late July.

Diyab's lawyer told Reuters earlier this month that he asked the Uruguayan consulate in Caracas to help him travel to Turkey where he was to meet with his family. But he was then arrested by Venezuelan security forces.

"He did not properly enter either Brazil or Venezuela, and was deported to Uruguay. He will continue to be treated as a refugee," Uruguayan Interior Minister Eduardo Bonomi told local paper El Pais.

News that Diyab had left Uruguay led a group of U.S. lawmakers to demand that President Barack Obama halt transfers of Guantanamo prisoners, arguing that they represented a security risk to Americans. REUTERS

USDA closes six offices in five states after threats

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has closed six offices in five states after receiving anonymous threats, a USDA representative said on Tuesday.

"Yesterday, USDA received several anonymous messages that are concerning for the safety of USDA personnel and its facilities. As a precaution, USDA has closed offices," USDA spokesman Matthew Herrick said in an emailed statement.

Herrick said offices were closed in Fort Collins, Colorado; Hamden, Connecticut; Beltsville, Maryland; Raleigh, North Carolina; and Kearneysville and Leetown, West Virginia.

White House spokesman Josh Earnest said the USDA was working with the Department of Homeland Security to ensure the safety of their offices and personnel, but he declined to provide any details about the threats. REUTERS

"In consultation with the Department of Homeland Security, USDA has taken some prudent steps to ensure the protection of their facilities and their personnel."

Maine governor may not finish term amid racism flap

Combative Maine Gov. Paul LePage said on Tuesday he would consider resigning as he faces a wave of criticism from both fellow Republicans and rival Democrats after leaving a lawmaker a profanity-filled voicemail last week.

LePage's latest outburst came after a newspaper reporter told the two-term, Tea Party-backed governor that Democratic state Rep. Drew Gattine had described the governor as racist for focusing on black people as bearing primary responsibility for the drug trade in the state.

"I'm looking at all options," LePage said in a weekly interview on WVOM-FM radio when asked if he would finish his term, which extends through 2018.

"I'm not going to say that I'm not going to finish it, I'm not saying that I am going to finish it. What I'm going to do right now is I'm taking one step at a time. I want to meet with Mr. Gattine and then I want to meet with my team at my office and we're going to look at what the proper steps are to move the state forward." REUTERS

Rousseff should be judged for crisis in Brazil, accuser says

Rousseff, who was suspended from office in May pending her trial, is accused of using money from state banks to bolster spending during her 2014 re-election campaign, a budgetary sleight of hand employed by many elected officials in Brazil.

Brazilian President Dilma Rousseff's accusers told her trial in the Senate on Tuesday she should be judged not only on charges of breaking budget rules but also for a sweeping corruption scandal and a deep recession that erupted on her watch.

Rousseff, who was suspended from office in May pending the trial, is accused of using money from state banks to bolster spending during her re-election campaign in 2014, a budgetary sleight of hand employed by many elected officials in Brazil.

In her testimony on Monday, Rousseff denied any wrongdoing and said the impeachment process was aimed at reversing the social gains achieved under 13 years of leftist rule and protecting the interests of the monied elites in Latin America's largest economy.

In an emotional speech, she compared the trial to her persecution under Brazil's 1964-1985 military dictatorship, when she was tortured by security services as a member of a leftist urban guerrilla group.

However, lawyer Janaina Paschoal, the author of the impeachment request against Rousseff, told the Senate in her closing arguments that her trial was not merely about "accounting issues" but about the damage done to Brazil by her government.

"You might say that this is beyond the scope of the trial but this is the reality and you as senators cannot vote ignoring our reality," Paschoal said. "The world needs to know that we are not just voting about accounting issues."

A final vote in the trial, which paralyzed Brazilian politics for the last nine months, is expected on Wednesday morning, according to Supreme Court Chief Justice Ricardo Lewandowski, who is presiding over the process.

In addition to the closing arguments by Rousseff's defense and accusers, more than 60 of the chamber's 81 senators have already registered to speak in the final debate. Lewandowski said he expected to end the session late on Tuesday and resume on Wednesday morning.

The trial has become a test of Rousseff's waning popularity and her failure to build lasting political alliances. REUTERS

Gov. Christie vetoes minimum wage hike to $15 an hour

Republican New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie vetoed a bill to raise the state's minimum wage to $15 per hour over the next five years.

The legislation would have made New Jersey the third state to adopt a $15 per hour minimum wage, Christie said in a statement.

State voters agreed to a previous wage hike in 2013, to $8.25 from $7.25. New Jersey's rate is tied to the consumer price index and is now at $8.38, according to a database from the National Conference of State Legislatures.

"Despite having a constitutional mandate in place, the Legislature now wants to increase the minimum wage by almost 80 percent just three years later," Christie said in a statement.

Christie, a close ally of Republican presidential nominee Donald Trump, said the wage bill passed by Democrats, who control both houses of state Legislature, failed to consider the ability of businesses to absorb the increased labor costs.

Neighboring New York state, as well as California, became the first states to lift the minimum wage toward $15 earlier this year.

While California's higher rate will be in effect statewide by 2022, New York created a two-speed system, with different timetables for New York City and nearby counties, versus the "upstate" regions where incomes are lower and labor markets less robust. REUTERS

Would You Like Instant Proof?

If you want instant proof - you can just look at all all the actual patient testimonials we have included. These patients were once skeptical just like you... and are now either pain free... or eliminated quite a bit of their pain.

Here's the most important thing: Many said they saw this information SEVERAL times before finally deciding to take action and give us a call. As you can see - they are happy they did.

Once crippled with knee pain, they are playing golf again, dancing again, riding bikes again and going for long walks again.

But We Do Get
One Very Common Complaint

And it is: "I wish I started this treatment much sooner." Let's be very clear about this. Time is the most precious thing. There is no way to slow it down - or get any back once it 's gone.

All the more reason for you to not suffer even one more second than you have to. Missing life suffering in pain is a tragedy. Isn't it time for you to get rid of your knee pain and start living the life you want and deserve?

And please understand this: One of the keys to success in medicine is early diagnosis and treatment. Like many diseases, arthritis only gets worse over time. The longer you wait - the more damage to your knee and eventually- the more pain. If you wait "past the point of no return", the entire knee joint can be degenerated and your ONLY option will be total knee replacement.

If you are suffering with knee arthritis pain, here is why you should act NOW: When you have arthritis, you suffer a decrease in the lubricating fluids in your knee. In other words, your knee joints basically "dries up." The lubricating fluid that decreases is called "synovial fluid". Pharmaceutical companies can now make synovial fluid-like compounds that... during treatments... doctors precisely and directly apply these gel-like medicines into the knee joint. This helps replace the lubricating fluid to the knee joint - allowing it to move more freely and smoothly and often decreasing or even eliminating pain.

In fact, by using Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology, NY Pain MD doctors are able to double confirm the precise placement of the arthritis medicines used. This is to help ensure patients get the best possible results.

Another Important Factor

Viscosupplementation medications also come in several different brands and chemical make-ups. Just like all medications, some people respond better to some than others. While many doctors only use one type or brands, the experts at NY Pain MD use several and great effort is taken to figure out which is best for YOU.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain
Your Special Invitation

I just go right to the golf course. I'm able to keep up with these guys who walk - I'm right next to them! My guys on the golf course would say Hey, look at this he doesn't need us to put the ball up any more.

When I'm playing on the course I don't have any pain any more I don't have any aches and pain.

I'm out there playing!

"I feel like a new woman"

I came to the clinic because I was not sleeping at night. My leg was pounding. There were times when I sat too long the knee would tighten up. I would get in pain and I would be miserable and I would have it for the whole night. After the treatment I goof around with my grandchildren. I feel like a new woman. It's great. I know I don't have to sit on the couch and be in pain and I can just pick up and get dressed and go out. It was so gentle.

It got to the point where I couldn't stand up for a period of time and I knew something had to be done about it. You walk into the doctors office - he puts your leg in a machine - he shows you where he is going to do the procedure and before you know it... it's done and you're outta there. Now I'm able to take out my bicycle a couple of the guys and myself we took a couple of rides out in the woods and we had a good time and I couldn't do that for years and now I'm able to do it again.

The pain was excruciating like 24/7. Nothing I took over-the-counter would work so I knew it was something more serious. When I saw that my condition was not getting any better, I decided to do something about it and I immediately made an appointment - I went and started treatment. The feeling of getting back to my dancing and my mobility is indescribable. I feel like a new woman - It's amazing.

"I am ecstatic with the results of this procedure"

One day, as I was running, my knee got tighter and tighter. I had to stop and just walk home. They x-rayed me and said I was a candidate for it. You sit there for about 2-3 minutes and then you are up and walking out the door. I am ecstatic with the results of this procedure because I could not run just weeks before. I ran my race without any issues. I felt good - it just opened a door that was closing.

"I Can Finally Live My Life"

Prior the the relief center I was taking (9;30) and I was becoming addicted to it and it was damaging my health. Since the treatment, I've been able to be less dependent on them. I don't feel helpless anymore. Since going through the procedure I can finally live. I can finally live my life.

THOUSANDS of knee arthritis sufferers flock for this advanced medical treatment - How they relieved pain while so many continue to suffer

Knee Arthritis Pain: The Untold Story

Why patients come from all over the Tri-State area for this knee arthritis pain treatment and why waiting can decrease your chance to live a pain free. life again

By Matt Edgar - America's Health Writer

NY Pain MD, a center for Non-Surgical Medical Relief For Spine And Joint Pain Relief,* is a medical clinic with multiple locations in New York City that has treated thousands of knee arthritis patients. Here is what every knee arthritis sufferer should know about the best treatments and options available today. And why waiting can drastically decrease your chances to live a pain free life again.

The information you are about to read can possibly save you from years and years of agonizing knee pain. It might even keep you from getting total knee replacement surgery. Please pay careful attention.

What you are about to read is a cutting-edge medical treatment... but it is NOT what it appears to be at first glance. In fact, I'm going to have to ask for a bit of patience from you if you have already unsuccessfully tried any (or many) other knee arthritis pain treatments.

You see, many knee arthritis sufferers had already tried what seemed to be similar treatments to what we are going to talk about and did not get the results they wanted. But I assure you there is something VERY DIFFERENT about the technology and the way we do this treatment that can possibly make it much more effective for many … and it often gets results when many others have failed.

This is why patients come from all over the tri-state area and beyond to have their knee arthritis pain treated here.

What Results Can Be Expected?

Like all medical treatments, the results vary and can not be predicted. In fact, it is impossible to predict results and there are no statistics proving what the "average" patients can expect. Everyone is individual and gets individual results - so we never tell anyone to expect the same results as any of our other patients. But to be 100% clear - many knee arthritis sufferers get dramatic results. It is not uncommon for patients to either postpone knee replacement surgery for years .. or even permanently cancel it.

What Are Treatments Like?

Treatments are simple, fast and virtually painless. The total time of the procedure itself is only 10 minutes and most say it is like getting a flu shot. You walk out of the clinic just minutes after your procedure.

But There Is A BIG Problem

The key is the treatment must be EXTREMELY PRECISE. Often ignored by many other clinics, if the procedure is just slightly off, the medication will not get into the knee joint and the treatment will not work.

That's why the experts at NY Pain MD use what they call "Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology" or P.A.T.T. so they can see the medicine going directly into the knee joint - in live motion- during the treatment.

Research shows that doctors performing procedures without Precision Arthritis Targeting can miss the joint as much as 30% of the time. If you had viscosupplementation (or Stem Cells or PRP) without the exactness of P.A.T.T. and did not get good results - this may

"I cannot ask for better results"

Dr. Stanley Weiner, M.D. - Surgeon

I had (replacement) surgery scheduled last year. Three months before I made an appointment .... I was amazed at the ease with which I was evaluated and the treatment schedule implemented. The results I had at NY Pain MD were outstanding. I cannot ask for better results. After the treatment I was able to go back to work with no discomfort at all. They use a digital monitor to locate the space that they use the treatment for and it's .. it's like exact science. Dr. Stanley Weiner MD

"Hey this feels terrific"

I was diagnosed bone on bone about 2 years ago I went to see an Orthopedic Surgeon and he said my knees were shot and I need to get them replaced. The NY Pain guys said after looking at x-rays they could help. That procedure is so basic so simple so quick in 15 minutes you are in and out. When I got up out of the chair I stood up and I said, "Hey this feels terrific."

"I don't have any pain any more"

After I had the treatments .. the last tuneup ..

"I feel like a new woman -It's amazing."

China charges U.S. woman with espionage

An American businesswoman held in China since March last year has been charged with spying, China's Foreign Ministry said on Tuesday, the latest development in a case that has added to U.S.-China tensions.

Sandy Phan-Gillis, from Houston, Texas, who is of Chinese ancestry and is a naturalized U.S. citizen, was arrested in March 2015 and had been held without charges since then.

"Based on our understanding, Phan-Gillis, because of her suspected crimes of espionage, has been charged according to law by the relevant Chinese department," Chinese Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Hua Chunying told reporters at a regular briefing.

"China is a country ruled by law. The relevant Chinese department will handle the case strictly according to law," she said, without elaborating.

It was unclear what violations the charge covers.

News of the charges against Phan-Gillis comes just ahead of a visit to China by U.S. President Barack Obama, who will arrive on Saturday for a G20 summit in the city of Hangzhou. Obama is scheduled to hold bilateral meetings with Chinese President Xi Jinping on Saturday.

Obama's visit comes at a time of heightened U.S. tensions with China, particularly over Beijing's extensive territorial claims in the South China Sea, but also over issues such as cyber spying.

In July, a Chinese man, Su Bin, 51, was sent to prison for 46 months in the United States after pleading guilty to conspiring to hack into the computer networks of major U.S. defense contractors. REUTERS

Orlando 911 calls tell of fear inside and outside of Pulse club

Shooter Omar Mateen killed 49 people and wounded 53 at the Pulse nightclub in the deadliest mass shooting in modern U.S. history.

Panicked callers to 911 during June's mass shooting in Orlando told police of buildings hit by stray bullets and wounded friends stuck inside the gay nightclub where a gunman pledging allegiance to Islamic State killed 49 people.

"Gun shots were just like crazy," one caller outside the club told 911 operators, according to partial transcripts of the calls that were released on Tuesday.

One neighbor near Pulse told 911 operators people were banging on his door to escape the shooting and others were seeking cover behind parked cars.

People reported on the carnage inside the club.

"One of our friends sent us a text and he said that he's been shot and he's in the bathroom and no one sees him," one caller told 911.

A woman told an operator her husband was in the club and he reported shooting.

"He told me he cannot get out. He's over there [and] he said he cannot get out," the woman said.

A man said: "I just got home from the Pulse club … My friends texted me [to] tell me there is a shooting going [on]. A lot of my friends got shot."

The operator responds by saying not to text or call the friend.

Authorities did not release the names of those who called 911 or those who were mentioned as being inside the club.

Mateen, 29, was killed by police inside the nightclub.

He pledged allegiance to the leader of the Islamic State militant group during the rampage in which he used an assault rifle and pistol that had been legally purchased although he had twice been investigated by the FBI for possible connections with militant Islamist groups.

U.S. authorities believe that Mateen, who lived in Fort Pierce, Florida, with his wife and young child, was self-radicalized and acted alone without assistance or orders from abroad. REUTERS

After day of drama, Chris Brown arrested by LAPD

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

After Chris Brown put himself under voluntary house arrest while the LAPD attempted to obtain a search warrant for his home, the singer was actually arrested by the LAPD on charges of assault with a deadly weapon on Tuesday night. Brown, 27, who once dated and assaulted Rihanna, was accused of pulling a gun on a woman early Tuesday morning. Brown and friends were at his home when the woman and other "uninvited guests" arrived. He then pointed the weapon at the woman after she and her friends refused to leave. She ran from the house and called 911, say numerous reports.

The police arrived at Brown's Tarzana home at 3 a.m., where they were unable to enter without a warrant, according to the Los Angeles Times. No worries, though, as TMZ's sources say: "[Brown] threw the duffel bag out the window, taunting cops and saying, 'Come and get me.'" The bag allegedly contained weapons and drugs.

Meanwhile, Brown posted a series of videos on Instagram and Snapchat, saying he would not leave his home until the officers acquired the proper warrant, adding, "When you get the warrant or whatever you need to do, you're going to walk right up in here and you're going to see nothing, you idiots." The singer who was on probation until March 2015 after viciously attacking then-girlfriend Rihanna, won a custody battle with Nia Guzman, who claimed he was unfit to care for their daughter.

Ice Cube ice cold on Donald Trump

Sorry, Trump supporters, but the coolest person who likes him is still, uh, Scott Baio, we guess. Over the weekend, the bum landlord-turned-TV star-turned-apocalyptic candidate seemed to have corralled one key celebrity to his side: His lemmings found an interview with Ice Cube, in which the rapper and movie star appeared to sing his praises.

"Donald Trump is what Americans love," Cube said. "Donald Trump is what Americans aspire to be: rich, powerful, do what you want to do, say what you want to say, be how you want to be. That's kind of been the American dream."

Yikes! But simmer down: Turns out his words were simply taken out of context. Soon as the Internet went aghast that the genius who wrote "F—k Tha Police" was stumping for a guy who said most Mexicans were rapists, Cube himself took to Twitter to make things right. "I will never endorse a motherf—er like Donald Trump! EVER!!!" he sent out. To which most Trumpees retorted, "Who's Ice Cube?"

Rihanna and Drake date night: sushi at Nobu, rose to go

We've known for a while that something's up between Drake and Rihanna. From his sentimental speech to her at the VMAs to their afterparty PDA, we'd wager at the very least he calls her on her cellphone.

In case you needed any more proof that the two are getting even cozier in real life than they do in the video for "Work," the rumored (read: obvious) couple was spotted last night leaving an intimate dinner at Nobu. Oh, and Ri Ri took her rosé, along with her Drake, to go, because that's how she rolls.

Ryan Lochte agreed to 'Dancing With the Stars' before Rio incident

Call it unfortunate timing.

The cast of the 23rd season of "Dancing With the Stars" was official revealed on "Good Morning America" on Tuesday and featured some familiar faces. Amber Rose… Rick Perry… Vanilla Ice… oh, and disgraced Olympian Ryan Lochte. The swimmer, who most recently was in hot water following an incident report gone sour in Rio, says his casting was agreed upon before the debacle, noting," I'm not one to make excuses, but I was still intoxicated. I was still going through the emotions of having a gun pulled on me."

The 32-year-old, who will be paired with dancer Cheryl Burke, is described as a "transcendent figure in the Olympic World" in the bio provided by ABC, but he was quick to address his past fibs during the morning interview. "I reached out to Jimmy [Feigen] saying, 'I know you had to pay that fine. It is my fault.' I'm taking full responsibility for this, and I will pay that back, if he will let me," he said of his 26-year-old teammate who paid $11,000 to leave Brazil following their crime.

But still — Lochte wants everyone to just get over it already: "Everyone's got to be sick and tired of hearing about this. I know I am," he added. "I just want to move forward and ... put on my dancing shoes. Or at least try to!" You can try, Ryan Lochte. You can definitely try.

Craig Robinson gets serious

The comedic actor scored an acting award at Sundance for playing a dad in "Morris from America."

MATT PRIGGE
@mattprigge
matt.prigge@metro.us

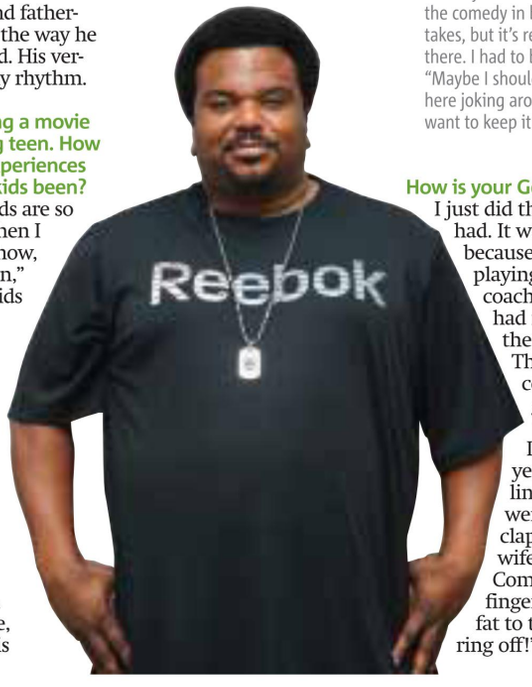
Craig Robinson plays a cool dad to a 13-year-old (Markees Christmas) in "Morris from America," now in theaters. A24

Craig Robinson isn't your typical comedic actor going serious. In "Morris from America," he plays a father who's dragged his teen son (Markees Christmas) to Heidelberg, Germany. The movie's about Morris, especially his crush on a slightly older local girl (Linda Keller). But it's also about their unusual father-son relationship. Robinson won a Jury Prize award at Sundance, which is how the "Office" star wound up on "Mr. Robot."

Did you have your feelers out for something more on the drama side?
I knew I had ambition, but there was no going after it. It was organic. It was challenging because it had a "Can you pull this off?" effect to it. But I also like this character. I liked his music; I liked the way he talked to his son. I'd never seen anything like their relationship, which toed the line between friendship and fatherhood. I liked the way he talked, period. His vernacular fit my rhythm.

You're sharing a movie with a young teen. How have your experiences acting with kids been?
It's funny: Kids are so prepared. When I had my TV show, "Mr. Robinson," there were kids on the show. When we auditioned them, it was amazing. Every kid that came in, it was like, "Who do we choose?" It would be the adults who came in and were like, "I just got this yesterday!" There was always something. I enjoy working with kids, when they get a little older. I did act with a 6-year-old once, and he was like, "I don't feel like it!" "OK, see all these people here? We're waiting on you." But 10 and up, they're great.

Social media and gadgets might not have destroyed them. It might make them more focused, more performative.
Pokemon Go, man! I mean, I don't even know why I said that. [Laughs] That's something I'll never, ever try. I'll never even attempt that. It's one thing to sit and play "Centipede" or "Pac-Man." But now they're going in the streets.



"Mr. Robot"

Since this film and the Sundance award you won, have you been getting more and more serious scripts and offers?
"Mr. Robot." I hadn't seen it, so when I got the call I watched it. I was like, "OK, you show me how you're going to fit me in there. We'll see." It was so secretive. They didn't even tell me what my role was. They gave me a description of my character, but I didn't find out what the role was till later.

How have you adjusted to doing that kind of show?
It's a learning experience. It's different than on a comedy set. I was bringing the comedy in between takes, but it's real over there. I had to be like, "Maybe I shouldn't be out here joking around." They want to keep it intense.

How is your German?
I just did the lines I had. It was funny, because I was playing a soccer coach, so they had me on the field. The other coaches are going, "Get the ball!" I was just yelling my lines, which were [starts clapping], "My wife is dead! Come on! My fingers are too fat to take the ring off!"

The trouble with Harley Quinn

Geek Girl in Hollywood

JENNA BUSCH
legionofleia.com

Margot Robbie's Harley Quinn, above, has been one of the most debated aspects of "Suicide Squad." CLAY ENOS

I spent the weekend at my first convention since the release of "Suicide Squad," and I noticed something: There were a lot of children dressed as Harley Quinn. Now, if you've ever been to a convention, you know this is not surprising. Harley is one of the most popular cosplays out there. She's been a fan favorite since she first appeared in "Batman: The Animated Series" in 1992. There have been endless discussions about her. Personally, I'm a fan. The thing that gives me pause is seeing a bunch of girls as young as 6 wearing fishnets, booty shorts and jackets that say "Property of the Joker."

As creepy as it was, I was also very conflicted about writing this. Certainly I write often about body image and being comfortable with whatever you want to wear. Did I have a problem with little girls and boys dressing up as the Joker? No. Other villains? Not at all. Serial killers? Nope. As a kid, I probably would have wanted to dress up as movie Harley as well. It's a cool character design and not very difficult to pull off at a con. So, why does this bother me?

First let me say that I'm absolutely not condemning parents (or the kids, for that matter) for dressing this way. I'm mostly writing this to find out why I'm so uncomfortable with it, when being uncomfortable goes against everything I usually stand for.

So, here's what I've come up with: It's not the fishnets. It's not the booty shorts. It's "Property of the Joker" that's getting me. Look, I have the jacket that says the very same thing. As I said, I'm a fan of the character. But there is something about seeing little girls dressing up as the "property" of someone that jars me.

When you see a kid dressing up as a serial killer, you think, "Well, there aren't that many of those." When you see a little Joker, you think, "Well, the likelihood is you won't end up in a place like Arkham Asylum." I mean, it could happen, but it probably won't. And it's not that I think that wearing a costume makes you like a character any more than I think loving video games or horror movies makes you violent. I do all of those things and I can't even kill a bug.

I think the problem is that domestic violence is so prevalent in our society. The misogyny women deal with online and in their real lives is an epidemic. The statistics are heartbreaking. I spoke with one person at the con whose mother had dealt with domestic violence, who said it was upsetting because so many of these girls will have to deal with this in the future.

So the conclusion I've come to is this: It isn't the costume or the character that are upsetting. It's how many of these little girls will have something in common with her one day.

Joe Jonas on life after the Jonas Brothers

"Time has made us evolve."

SILVA GABRIELA ACOSTA

DNCE is a musical injection to lift the spirits.

No matter your age, you can't help but move your feet when you hear the beats of this new group led by Joe Jonas. Their single, "Cake by the Ocean," has more than 180 million views on YouTube and continues to dominate Spotify and iTunes charts as the song of the summer. This dance-party-ready group that prints a fresh sound arose amid a pop landscape largely dominated by reunions.

We chatted with Jonas and Cole Whittle, who, along with Jack Lawless and JinJoo Lee, make up the group's stellar chemistry.

Stunned with success?

Jonas: It has been incredible! I think we've been musicians all our lives and you know, the feeling of being together, the public reacts quickly and "Cake by the Ocean" has reached, literally, the entire world so quickly. We feel fortunate and happy, and that only makes us want to work harder because we want to be a band forever, we want to stay around for a long time.

Pop has been questioned in recent times, what do you think about that?

Jonas: It is going through a serious moment. There are many artists that are doing a type of pop that leads nowhere … I don't know, so I hope we're bringing something different and fun, but something people will take seriously.

Cole Whittle: We're making music we like. It's pop, but with a different proposal. The four of us were walking down four different streets and we found one headfirst. That was the beginning of the band.

What's the difference between DNCE and the Jonas Brothers?

Jonas: Probably the biggest difference is that we have grown a lot through music and you know, those moments when time has made us evolve, really. Many people categorize us as a continuation; there are a lot of enemies who believed that we couldn't do things separately. The Jonas Brothers were left behind, but we continue to create individual projects.

Whittle: Musically, DNCE sounds like funk disco beats. Aesthetically, we are all very different characters and that is what is projected on stage. Everyone identifies with one of us, somehow … we are like the X-Men or something. (Laughs)

In Yorkville, affordable rents and a building boom

As the Second Avenue subway nears completion, new condos draw buyers.

KATE MOONEY
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

The Upper East Side of Manhattan has long been synonymous with stuffy, old-timey New York. But in recent years, as the increasing popularity of Brooklyn has caused rents to rise, more and more folks have gravitated to Yorkville, a more low-key, affordable subset of the neighborhood that stretches from E. 79th Street to E. 97th Street and from 3rd Avenue to the East River.

Rent there is cheaper than some Brooklyn neighborhoods. According to StreetEasy's July 2016 market report, Yorkville's median asking rent is $2,800, compared to $2,998 in Park Slope, $3,199 in Williamsburg and $4,793 in Dumbo.

Wes Wethington, 30, works in talent acquisition at Foot Locker Inc. in Midtown. He moved a year ago to Yorkville from Park Slope because "it was just as expensive as Brooklyn, and easier for me to get to work," he says.

He pays $1,000 a month for one room in a two-bedroom at 95th Street and First Avenue.

He mentioned additional draws, such as Uber Pool's $5 commuter flat rate for all rides during rush hour below 125th Street, that make living there convenient and hassle-free.

Yorkville provides as much in way of things to do as Park Slope, at least bar- and restaurant-wise — Caledonia, an upscale Scottish whisky bar right on Second Avenue, is one of Wethington's favorite haunts.

Those looking to buy can also find deals. Based on July 2016 data from StreetEasy, the median sales price in Yorkville is $850,000, compared to $122,500 on the Upper West Side, and $3,516,079 in Dumbo.

But a recent building boom may be changing that. A number of high-rise luxury condo buildings are in development in anticipation of the first phase of the Second Avenue subway line, which would provide Q train service between 96th Street and 63rd Street.

It's slated for completion by Dec. 30, 2016 — though there are rumors that it might be delayed. According to a July article in The Wall Street Journal, operational testing won't begin until Oct. 1, which, along with a slew of other logistical issues, could cause setbacks.

Kelly Gitter, a veteran broker with Corcoran, says the pending completion of the Second Avenue subway line is more of a draw for buyers than renters.

"It's an incentive for buyers in terms of knowing it will be complete, eventually, and it will bring up the value of your home — it's a good investment," she says. "It's a deterrent for renters until it's complete, because people see workers and machinery and wonder, 'How long is this going to be?'"

Inside Look: Riverdale mansions

This affluent neighborhood features multimillion-dollar homes that are more suburban than urban.

CRISTABELLE TUMOLA
@CristabelleT

4970 Independence Ave. ALL PHOTOS DOUGLAS ELLIMAN

Located in the northwest portion of the Bronx, Riverdale is known for its affluence and suburban-like lifestyle.

Today, the area has expansive homes with large lots, apartment buildings and everything in between. According to StreetEasy, in the early 19th century, wealthy Manhattanites built second homes in Riverdale, but once railroads provided access to the neighborhood about a century later, those homes became their primary residences.

In addition to pricey real estate, Riverdale is also home to three top private schools, all part of the Ivy Preparatory School League: Horace Mann, Riverdale Country and Fieldston.

Here are three Riverdale properties listed in the millions that will make you forget you're only minutes from the Upper West Side:

5022 Arlington Ave.

$3.2 million

This Tudor-Style home is located on a cul-de-sac in the privately owned Fieldston Estates section of Riverdale. Recently renovated, the six bedroom, five-and-a-half bath house has new plumbing, electric, central A/C, heating, thermal windows and alarm system. Enjoy a glass-enclosed atrium can year-round, or entertain in the lower level's media room that has a bar, full bath, laundry, large storage room and guest room with a separate entrance. Outside, there is a circular driveway leading to a two-car attached garage. The backyard has a grilling patio and gardens, and is large enough for a future pool or tennis court. An adjoining rear lot is also available for $900,000.

5022 Arlington Ave.

4970 Independence Ave.

$3.7 million

Called the Henry F. Spaulding Coachman's House, this Riverdale home was declared a city landmark in 1981 and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. The main portion of the home dates to 1880, and is Victorian style, with board-and-batten siding, jigsaw ornamentation, twin chimneys and a slate roof. A separate cottage, which dates even further back, connects to the eight-bedroom, four-bathroom home, to add a family room with skylight, fireplace and a drinking fountain from the old Metropolitan Opera House. A two-car garage adapted from a historical farm building also stands on this one-acre estate.

4645 Delafield Ave.

$3.8 million

This single-family home features nine bedrooms and eight bathrooms on an acre of land. It has gone through a four-year gut renovation and expansion, but includes charming details like its turret and chandelier from the original house. There are also two swimming pools and a zip line on the property.

Three big names in men's tennis looking to dominate at US Open

Novak Djokovic, Andy Murray and Rafael Nadal are expected to each advance deep into this year's tournament.

ADAM ZAGORIA
@MetroNewYork
sports@metro.us

The Big 4 in men's tennis are down to a Big 3 for this U.S. Open, but are still looking to extend their dominance over the rest of the field.

Five-time champion Roger Federer is sidelined for the rest of 2016 with a knee ailment, but Novak Djokovic, Andy Murray and Rafael Nadal remain the three favorites to win the title on Sept. 11.

The Big 4 have won 42 of the past 46 Grand Slam titles dating to the 2005 French Open. During that stretch, Nadal has won 14 titles, Federer 13, Djokovic 12 and Murray three. Still, two of the four exceptions during that span have happened in Queens, with Juan Martin Del Potro capturing the 2009 U.S. Open by beating both Nadal and Federer en route to the title and Marin Cilic winning the 2014 Open by crushing Federer in the semifinals.

"The Big 4 are getting older," the 30-year-old Nadal said with a smile last week. "It's normal that there is new generation that tries to be in that positions, no?

"But still Novak is No. 1, Andy No. 2, and he's in a good position in the race. I got injured, it's true. But before the injury I was the third in the race and not very far from No. 2. Roger, it's true, is having a tough year in terms of injuries, too."

No. 1 Djokovic and No. 4 Nadal both won their first-round matches on Monday and are drawn to meet one another in the semifinals, yet both are battling left wrist injuries that could keep them from playing their best, especially across the two-week grind of a Grand Slam event. (Djokovic is right-handed, while Nadal is a lefty.)

Murray was slated to play his opening match Tuesday night under the lights in Arthur Ashe Stadium.

Wearing tape on his left wrist, Nadal breezed past Denis Istomin during the day session on Ashe, 6-1, 6-4, 6-2, while during the night session Djokovic appeared to struggle with a left wrist and right arm injury in a laborious four-set win over Jerzy Janowicz, 6-3, 5-7, 6-2, 6-1.

Andy Murray is one of the favorites to win the men's championship in Queens. GETTY IMAGES

Djokovic said he injured the wrist before the start of the Rio Olympics, where he was stunned in the first round by a resurgent del Potro, who went on to lose the gold medal match to Murray. Djokovic then pulled out of the event in Cincinnati because of the wrist. Meantime, the trainer attended to the Serb's arm during the Janowicz match.

"To be honest, I take it day by day," said Djokovic, who is seeking to win his 13th career major, one shy of Nadal and Pete Sampras' 14 and four behind Federer's all-time mark of 17. "Tomorrow is a new day. I hope that I'll feel overall good so I'm able to perform at my best for the next match."

Nadal, meantime, has been bothered by the wrist since withdrawing before the third round at the French Open, a tournament he has won nine times. He didn't play again until the Olympics, where he lost the bronze medal match to Kei Nishikori.

"Is not easy to go 2½ months out of competition in the middle of the season without hitting a forehand," he said. "I need to have the confidence again with my wrist. That is coming, because I feel the wrist much better, and every day feel that the wrist a little bit better. That's a very important thing for me. By the way, the most important thing."

Depending on how they feel across this fortnight, the injuries to Nadal and Djokovic could open the way for Murray to continue his brilliant late-season run. He won both Wimbledon and Olympic gold for a second time each, but did not have to play Djokovic in either event.

"To be honest, they're both in the top half," Murray said of Djokovic and Nadal. "With them having wrist problems doesn't affect my chances of getting to the final. I wouldn't have to play them in that stage, anyway."

While the Big 4 have dominated, a group of other players still has the chance to break through and do damage here. No. 5 Milos Raonic, the Wimbledon runner-up to Murray, No. 6 Nishikori, the 2014 U.S. Open runner-up to seventh-seed Cilic, who could meet Djokovic in the quarterfinals, are all potential champions.

COUSINS, LANDRY WILL DOMINATE

FANTASY SPORTS

ADAM LEVITAN
alevitan@metro.us

The first freelance fantasy article I ever had published appeared in Metro newspapers in 2006. I never thought it could become a full-time job.

But here we are as I'm now writing my last fantasy article for Metro. Thank you to everyone who has read over the years, even those who reached out to tell me how dumb I am. I'll leave you with three of my hottest takes for the 2016 NFL season, fiery enough for you to remember me by.

TAKE 1

Kirk Cousins will lead the NFL in passing yards

The Redskins' run game projects to be more inept than it was last year, when they ranked 30th in yards per carry, 20th in TDs scored and 20th in yards per game. Feature back Matt Jones has major ball-security, injury and efficiency concerns — which leaves Chris Thompson as their most talented back. His best skill is in the pass game, and that's where the Redskins' personnel leads us. Jordan Reed, DeSean Jackson, Pierre Garcon, Jamison Crowder, Josh Doctson, Niles Paul and Thompson are a formidable unit for Kirk Cousins to fling it to. This is a guy who already averages 279.8 yards per game in his 24 full NFL games. That would be good for second in NFL history, behind only Drew Brees' 280.7. In Cousins' 26 overall NFL starts, he's been over 300 yards 12 times — a higher rate than Brees and Peyton Manning.

Can Kirk Cousins succeed up against the pressure of a contract year? GETTY IMAGES

Jarvis Landry will set the NFL record for receptions

Under new coach Adam Gase, the Dolphins are upping their pace in a big way by moving to no-huddle as a base. They're also fielding one of the worst defenses in the NFL, highlighted by an inept cornerback crew. So if we mix those new factors in with Jarvis Landry's 110 catches from last year, we get a boost into the 130 range. On top of that, Ryan Tannehill's affinity for targeting Landry has only increased and Gase is encouraging it. Given how often Miami will be playing from behind and the high catch rate Landry achieves by running routes close to the line of scrimmage, Marvin Harrison's record of 143 catches in the 2002 season is in play.

Donte Moncrief finishes as a top-5 WR

Vontae Davis' latest injury, continued offensive line misery and zero depth behind grandpa Frank Gore at running back leaves everything on the shoulders of Andrew Luck. He's a strong candidate to lead the NFL in pass attempts and will need to get the ball out quickly to adjust for all the pressure he'll face. Enter Donte Moncrief, bigger than T.Y. Hilton and Phillip Dorsett but nearly as fast. Moncrief runs the more physical routes, the ones Luck will need to move the chains. He's a fourth-round pick with first-round upside.

AS THE METS SURGE TOWARD WILD CARD, IS IT TIME TO BELIEVE?

Power from Yoenis Cespedes will be a key ingredient for a playoff run. GETTY IMAGES

Here come the Mets!

It might have taken awhile, and certainly there have been some frustrations along the way, but the Mets have finally found themselves.

They have dealt with injuries to stars like David Wright and Matt Harvey. They lost their cleanup hitter in Lucas Duda. They also did not get their expected boost to the rotation with the return of Zack Wheeler. They have dealt with some strange managerial decisions by Terry Collins in the dugout which has cost the team a game or two along the way. Let's not forget the Collins meltdown following a loss as he looked to inspire his team and get them out of their slumber.

We have not even gotten into Yoenis Cespedes and the drama and production that he brings with him. Quad injury and all, he continues to show that New York brings the best out of him, which is a characteristic that Mets' brass should run to instead of run from.

With all that, here they are about to give this city, along with Gary Sanchez and the Yankees, some September baseball to watch.

I did not think that was going to be the case when the Mets were scuffling along. It seemed like we were heading to the inevitable conversation of what went wrong and the future of manager Terry Collins.

But here we are, the Mets are surging at the right time of the year. They are 6-1 in their last seven games and have scored 49 runs in those six victories. Their offense is surging with the return of Cabrera and Cespedes from the DL and there is no question the impact that Jose Reyes has had at the top of the order. In other words, the Mets seem to be coming together at the right time of the season and a very easy September schedule of opponents awaits.

Sure, they have benefited from the very fact that it is a lackluster Wild Card race in the National League, and when the Mets were struggling with injuries and performance, nobody separated themselves for the second Wild Card spot. If this was a year ago, we would not be having this discussion. It is not, and every year in baseball is a little bit different.

Every journey and path is different for a playoff team. Some are easier than others. There is no question that the Mets have taken the road less traveled but they are here nonetheless. Maybe that will make September that much sweeter. The offense is starting to click, and we all know how Cespedes can carry this team when he starts to get going and if Noah Syndergaard and Jacob deGrom can find consistency in September, they will be a difficult team to deny. I know there are some "ifs" moving forward, but the very fact we are having this conversation is pretty amazing from where this team was a few short weeks ago. It is staring to feel like last year again.

The Mets are starting to give everyone reasons to "Believe."

Aries Be logical. It's in your best interest to negotiate and to present what you have to offer without the help of others. Be your own person and do things for yourself.

Taurus Money matters will cause uncertainty. Go over your expenses in order to find a way to cut corners. A business trip will lead to information that will encourage profitable changes.

Gemini You'll face criticism. Approach whatever you want to do silently. Once you have worked out all the kinks, you will find it much easier to deal with nonbelievers.

Cancer Changes at home will add to your comfort and encourage you to entertain more. If you express your thoughts, you'll gather the support needed to reach your objectives.

Leo Bring about changes that will inspire you or make your life more comfortable. Put greater emphasis on personal growth and updating your appearance. Pamper yourself.

Virgo You must be realistic when dealing with changes you want to make to your personal life or domestic environment. Practical action over expensive alterations is favored.

Libra Take a unique approach when dealing with peers or superiors in order to capture attention. Don't let the actions of others influence you. Stick to your principles.

Scorpio Positive changes at home will encourage you to socialize and host functions. Your openness will surprise some, and will result in positive interactions.

Sagittarius Jealousy and anger will surface if you get into a competitive situation, or reconnect with someone from your past. Avoid such encounters and focus on personal change.

Capricorn A requested donation or handout is best declined. You should invest in your ideas and in boosting your standard of living. Charity begins at home.

Aquarius Don't let anyone badger you into thinking you aren't doing enough or that you should take on responsibilities that don't belong to you. Offer help, but set some ground rules.

Pisces Don't let someone else's uncertainty cloud your vision or slow you down. Look at the big picture and use your imagination to come up with workable solutions. EUGENIA LAST
